Modernizing NYS airports is critical to upgrading the New York State transportation network. The Frederick Douglass Greater Rochester International Airport is part of this new revitalization initiative to improve passenger experience, add operational efficiencies and to promote local and regional economic activity.

Greater Rochester International Airport has multiple projects, including the revitalization of the terminal building to further modernize the entryway, ticketing area, and baggage claim to make it more inviting and easier to navigate. Another project zeroes in on enhancements to airport operations, making HVAC enhancements and renovations to the freight building and the baggage belt.

Finally, the airport will also provide a summary of the Airport's Capital Improvement Plan (ACIP).

It's the goal of NYSDOT, the FAA, and the Airport, to maximize participation of local, regional DMWBEs in these exciting projects. You are invited to learn more, meet with decision makers, network with peers, and find opportunities to become involved.
